TIME IS MONEY

County Auditor Teeter has given warning that the opportunity of reaping benefits in the redemption of delinquent property must be exercised before the 20th of April.

Prior to that date, the cost of paying off taxes still due for years previous to the current fiscal year has been reduced, now being based on the net amount of the original tax (without penalties), with interest at 7 percent from July 1, 1935 or 1934—in no case earlier than 1934 even though the delinquency may be for 1930-31.

After April 20 the regular redemption costs will include the original tax plus the first and second installment delinquency penalties and the advertising cost, with interest at 12 percent from the actual date of delinquency.

By taking advantage of the special inducement offered at this time property owners in arrears can save from $2 to $100, depending upon the date of delinquency and the amount of the tax bill, the auditor points out. The same "bargain" offer applies to city delinquent taxes.

Those having delinquencies will, if possible, do well to avail themselves of this special opportunity to discharge old debts without serious penalties being inflicted upon them. But the "deadline" is April 20.

Two Paroled Felons Held On Charges

BERKELEY, March 6—Admitting passage of six bad checks totaling $200, Fobert S. Christman, 40, ex-convict, 2623 Mission Street, San Francisco, was charged today with seeking to mulct C. A. Roy, owner of an El Cerrito dog kennel, of $47.

Also held in jail for investigation is Howard R. Ballard, 29, WPA worker, 2341 Valley street, who was arrested yesterday at the First Berkeley branch of the Bank of America while seeking to pass a check given Christmas by Roy. While William Jenkins, vice president of the Bank of America, held Ballard when Roy appeared at the bank after he had become suspicious of Christman, police took Christman into custody as the latter was waiting across the street in a borrowed automobile.

ARE ON PAROLE

Christman and Ballard both are paroled from Illinois Penitentiary, the former after serving more than three years on a bad check charge and the latter after doing time for stealing an automobile. According to police investigation, Christman nuegotiated purchase of a Dobermann Pinscher dog from Roy, tendering a check for $157 in payment, on which Roy gave him his check for $47 in change. Becoming suspicious Roy hastened to the Bank of America, on which his check was drawn, and arrived there a few minutes before Ballard appeared to cash the check.

THEFT CONFESSED

Christman confessed entering an office of a large estate in Davis, where he stole nine checks from a check book, six of which, including the one tendered Roy, he admitted passing in the East Bay.

Christman, according to police, also served time in San Quentin and Utah penitentiaries. According to Inspector W. J. Wilson Ballard's part in the bad check transactions has not been determined as yet and further investigation will be made in his case.

NAZIS MAY RENOUNCE PEACE PACT

BERLIN, March 6.—UP—Coincident with summoning of a special Reichstag session to hear an "important declaration" from Fuehrer Adolph Hitler tomorrow, ambassadors representing signatories of the Locarno pact tonight were summoned to the Nazi chieftain's chancellory.

There was wide speculation as to whether Germany and Italy are about to turn their backs on the Locarno treaty.

The ambassadors of France, Italy and Great Britain were requested, according to highest sources, to visit the Wilhelmstrassed chancellory at 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

One hour afterward, the Reichstag, which meets only on call, is to sit to receive Hitler's "important declaration."

No official reason has been advanced for summoning the ambassadors of the Locarno countries in advance of the Reichstag session.

FRANCE IS FEARFUL

PARIS, March 6.—UP—France tonight feared Fuehrer Adolph Hitler will announce remilitarization of the Rhineland tomorrow when he delivers "an important declaration" to a special session of the Reichstag.

While other quarters fear Germany is about to turn her back on the Locarno treaty and precipitate a new diplomatic crisis in Europe because of her objections to the Franco-Soviet pact, the French foreign office is gravely alarmed lest Hitler confirm the dreaded arming of the Rhineland which was demilitarized at end of the World War.

Liquor Dealers Told To Go And Offend No More

MARTINEZ, March 6 — Complaints of seven liquor dealers, accused of selling liquor on their premises when they hold only off-sale permits, were dismissed with reprimands today by Captain M. Stout, liquor administrator of the State Board of Equalization, after hearings at the Hall of Records here. They were cited after state board agents allegedly made purchases and consumed liquor on their premises.

Those making appearance before Stout were: S. Bianchi, 532 Nineteenth street, Richmond; William J. Davis, San Pablo; G. L. Romeo, 1095 San Pablo avenue, Richmond; Anna Somers, 221 Standard avenue, Richmond; Louis Regazzini and Antonio Pinoli, 114 West Barrett avenue, Richmond; Florence Evans 940 San Pablo avenue, El Cerrito.

Stout took under advisement an application of the Pup Cafe, 940 San Pablo avenue, for renewal of its license.

He announced Manuel Rose, 727 Loring avenue, Crockett, and Leo Sassone, 619 Macdonald avenue, Richmond, are to be cited to appear at a hearing here soon to defend charges their food serving facilities fail to comply with the law.

Wallace Denies He's Dictator

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 6 —UP—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace tonight laughed off a charge that Congress, through the new farm program, has made him a "financial dictator with a $500,000,000 box of candy to distribute any way he sees fit."

The secretary, satisified "100 per cent" with results of the Memphis farm conference at which the new program was outlined, boarded a train tonight for Chicago.

Guilty Plea Is Entered By O'Malley

PLACERVILLE, March 6.—UP—Unexpectedly changing his plea, Marvin O'Malley, 45, former San Francisco stockbroker's clerk, today appeared in Superior court and pleaded guilty to a grand theft charge.

O'Malley was also wanted in Richmond for check forgery. He is alleged to have mulcted Mrs. Marie L. Ogborn, former Richmond city councilwoman, out of a sum of more than $600 through signing her name to checks.

Sheriff George M. Smith, a week ago, found three bars of O'Malley's cell cut with a file. The prisoner admitted the escape attempt and surrendered two files.

He is charged with obtaining $6,000 worth of negotiable bonds from Mr. and Mrs. William Rust last November, promising to exchange them for "something better." He failed to return but was arrested in San Francisco last December 29.

Upon hearing the plea of guilty, Judge George H. Thompson today set March 9 as the date for imposition of sentence.

Chinese Convicted On Bribery Charge

The jury deliberated five hours. Earlier in the evening the jurors informed Judge Stanley Murray they had found Ying guilty on one of six counts, and the judge ordered them to return to their deliberations.

D.A. ASKED TO STOP OUSTER OF OFFICIAL

ALAMEDA, March 6.—UP—With armed factions disputing control of Alameda's city government, a citizens' committee tonight called on District Attorney Earl Warren, demanding immediate action to halt ouster of Superintendent of Schools William G. Paden and a strike of some 3000 students.

Dr. Gale Clelland, pastor of the First Congregational Church acted as spokesman for the group. Approximately 500 Alameda Voters League members, parents of striking students and adult sympathizers joined in the march to Warren's office.

HIGHLY EXCITED

Dr. Clelland warned Warren that Alameda's citizenry was in a "highly excited state" over the situation. He said that armed guards, purportedly posted by City Manager B. Ray Fritz and Mayor Hans Roebke were in possession of the city hall, and that their presence might provoke an outburst of violence.

The guards were posted when Roebke and Fritz opened preparations to seize Police Chief Verne Smith's office today, then aban-

Carlson Charges Jurors Falsify To Convict Mrs. McCord

If the legal points raised by the firm of Carlson & Collins in making a motion for a new trial yesterday, are sustained by Judge Bray next Tuesday, at which time probably a decision will be rendered, Ruth W. McCord, convicted ex-head of the social department of the county will soon thereafter be a free woman. The next step in event of the granting of the motion will be to sue out a writ of habeas corpus.

Briefly stated the main point argued by Attorney Carlson was that J. H. Morrow, county purchasing agent had no right or authority under the law to pay the claim, which was the basis of the indictment, the statutes governing the revolving fund in his office limiting the payment from it to "claims for services and materials." As the claim of $68.98 was stated as expenses of a trip for Mrs. Ida Jackson from Richmond to Moffat, Colorado, it would fall within neither category of services or materials. Judge Bray conceded that a very close point of law was involved in Carlson's contention, and gave the district attorney's office until next Tuesday at 1 o'clock to look up authorities in rebuttal.

LEGAL OBSTACLES REMOVED

Two indictments were returned against Mrs. McCord. Two counts of the one on which she went to trial were successfully gotten out of the way through legal motions of the defense and the second indictment, charging the embezzlement of two sums of money amounting to $200 was dismissed after the trial on motion of the district attorney by reason of the case having been found in the files of the social service department. Four of five counts against the woman having fallen by the wayside, the only accusation against her is the one count on which she was tried and convicted. If this count is overturned there will be nothing left against her in the way of criminal charges.

PULLS ANOTHER SURPRISE

The attack on the right of the purchasing agent to pay the claim was not the only surprise that Carlson pulled out of the legal box. He asserted that certain members of the jury had falsified in order to sit on the case and thus be afforded the opportunity to convict Mrs. McCord. He will endeavor to substantiate this allegation thru the medium of affidavits, which will be presented at next Tuesday's

N. Y. STRIKE SPREADS TO BIG HOTELS

NEW YORK, March 6—UP—Striking building employes shifted their attack tonight to midtown Manhattan where they tied up service in a dozen big hotels.

Flying squadrons of strikers moved into the hotels and persuaded elevator operators, chambermaids and porters to walk out. James J. Bambrick, president of the local Building Service Employes' Union, said it was only the start of a campaign to halt elevators and let furnaces go cold in all the big buildings in the grand central zone.

HOTELS HIT

Such skyscrapers as the Chrysler and Lincoln buildings will be the next target for attack, Bambrick added.

Operators of the hotels, including the historic McAlpin, said guests were inconvenienced for only a brief time because service was partially restored.

There was less violence today and strikers and building owners seemed closer to a compromise. The Prudence Company, Inc., which controls $150,000,000 worth of property, made peace with the union and 3500 men went back to work.

ONE COMPROMISE

SANTA FE FIVE WINS A DIVISION CHAMPIONSHIP

KIPKE IMBUES '36 SQUAD WITH SPIRIT TO WIN

ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 6.—UP—Harry Kipke has begun spring football practice at the University of Michigan with the dictum that his players will have "to look good even when they lose" if they expect to make the team next fall.

The coach is struggling to get Michigan 'farther out' of the football rut. He uses the expression because his team failed to win half of its games last fall. Using as his nucleus some of the 20 letter-men—out of 26—who will be back, in addition to several other veterans, Kipke also will have men ineligible last fall to call as his trumps. He is counting heavily on the youngsters, figures that many of them will see competition and quite a number earn letters.

NEW MEN PLACED FIRST

The coaches have about decided that players who failed to look impressive the last two seasons, even though they have seen enough service to earn letters, will have to make room for the new prospects. Whether they will go through with their present plans to build a team from rough-riding sophomores or at the last fall sack of more experienced men remains to be seen.

The squad is working in two groups now. Each drills twice a week. As soon as the basketball floor is out of Yost Field House, the practice sessions will be moved there from the intramural building and as early as possible, probably about March 30, outdoor work will be started.

Kipke's plans call for a first squad of about 25 men, lined up by the close of spring practice. Attention will be concentrated on those men during the weeks between September 10, the day fall practice starts, and October 3, the day Michigan State plays here.

THREE REGULARS LOST

Only three of last season's regulars, Bill Renner, John Viergever and Mike Savage, will be missing next fall, but Kipke is looking beyond most of the survivors to new men. He is hopeful that Bob Cooper, backfield star, out all last season with injuries, and Frank Dutkowski and George Marsonic, guards, missing because of ineligibility, will be available.

He also expects help from last season's big freshmen, outstanding among whom were E. Cramon Stanton, Alex Loiko, Norman Purucker, Francis Clark, Robert Curren, and Louis Levine. All are backfield men.

Other possibilities are:

Elmer Gedeon and Marion Thompson, ends.

Fred Janke, Don Siegel, John Brennan, Forest R. Jordan, and Seymour Rosenthal, tackles.

Ralph Heikkinen, Martin Mark, and Fred Hoover, guards.

John D. Jordan, and Howard Brandt, centers.

RAILROADERS MEET MALIKS MONDAY NIGHT

The Santa Fe "Super Chiefs" went to town last evening at the Roosevelt junior high school gymnasium to defeat the Johnson Clothiers' by a score of 37 to 34 and win the championship of the A division league.

The Santa Fe team had previously won the first half championship. In last night's game both teams entered the contest with six victories and one defeat. If the Johnsons had won, a playoff for the division championship would have been necessary.

JOHNSONS LEAD

At the end of the first half it looked as if there would have to be a playoff. The Johnson team left the floor leading by a score of 15 to 12. In the second half Stan Nelson, ace goal shooter for the Chiefs, was taken out of the game on four personal fouls.

Then Tula and Olson, who had gone scoreless in the first half, got warmed up to their work. In the last half Tula scored 11 points and Olson 10.

EXCITING GAME

The outcome of the game was in doubt from start to finish. Time after time the Santa Fe would gain the lead, only to have the Clothiers come right back and head the scoring list. At no time, however, was there a difference of more than three points in the scores.

The fast and furious play had the record crowd of fans on their feet from the beginning of the game.

GET 12 POINTS

Smersfelt and Alexander, of the losers, shared high scoring honors for the evening. Both scored 12 points.

According to present plans, the Santa Fe team will meet the Ben Malik cagers, champions of the B division, in the city league championship game on Monday evening at the school gymnasium.

In last night's preliminary contest, San Pablo nosed out Princeton Knitting Mills by a 33 to 30 score. Gardner got 16 points for the winners.

4 WOMEN STARS ENTER FINALS IN GOLF PLAY

DEL MONTE, March 6.—UP—Four contestants remained today in the Pebble Beach women's championship following another morning round of upsets which have marked the entire tournament.

The quartet comprised Dorothy Traung, San Francisco; Barbara Beach Thompson, Palo Alto; Clara Callendar, Monterey, and Alice Hauchett, Santa Cruz. They will meet tomorrow in semi-finals.

Miss Traung won her match easily today, defeating Marian Leachman, Berkeley 3 and 2.

The sensational performance of the round, however, was turned in by Miss Thompson, who downed Mary Morse, 14 year old star, 7 and 6. Miss Thompson was out in 39, two under women's par. When she passed Miss Morse at the 12th, she was only four under men's par. Miss Morse was out in 43.

Marie Lovell, Long Beach, who yesterday defeated Elizabeth Abbott, the defending champion, was beaten in a hard-fought match by Miss Hauchett, 1 up.

Carnera Wins Hollow Victory

NEW YORK, March 6.—UP—Primo Carnera, former world champion, won a technical knockout victory over Isidoro Gastanaga, Spanish heavyweight, after 46 seconds of battling in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-rounder at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Referee Artie Donovan halted the bout after Gastanaga was blinded momentarily by blood from a cut over his left eye.

It was a hollow victory for the towering Italian because his opponent, almost five inches shorter and topped by more than 60 pounds on the scales, waged a smart battle before losing.

Ann's Physician Is Reported Ill At Sanitarium

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6—UP—Hearing of formal charges of conspiracy to commit mayhem against Drs. Tilton E. Tilman and Samuel C. Boyd were delayed today when it was revealed that Dr. Boyd has been in Dante Sanitarium several weeks under an assumed name.

The physician is the second principal in the sensational Ann Cooper Hewitt sterilization case to undergo hospitalization. Mrs. Maryen Cooper Hewitt McCarter, a defendant in the mayhem case and in a $500,000 damage suit brought by the 21-year-old heiress, is in a critical condition in a Jersey City hospital.

Boyd is alleged to have performed the sterilization operation upon Miss Hewitt.

Municipal Judge Sylvain Lazarus, advised of Boyd's illness, postponed the scheduled hearing until March 16th.

Farm Program To Be Started In Three Weeks

CHICAGO, March 6.—UP—The 1936 soil conservation program, the Federal government's latest attempt to bolster farm income, will be set up on a temporary basis throughout the various states within the next three weeks, the United Press learned today.

W. E. Callander, assistant administrator of the old AAA said the Department of Agriculture was impressed with the need of speed and that groundwork of the program would be in effect before spring planting.

"We want to have it on such a basis that farmers can determine at once the changes necessary in their planting program—and if possible to figure approximately the total benefit payments they may expect," Callander said.

SOAK THE RICH TAXES OPPOSED BY ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, March —UP— Sharp administration opposition to "soak the rich" tax proposals and to higher individual income levies in the lower brackets, has been transmitted to the congressional committee considering the new $1,137,000,000 revenue program, it was learned today.

The administration's attitude was made known in an unsigned memorandum accompanying estimates of potential new revenue from seven sources which the treasury suggested congressional tax experts might consider as an alternative to tax proposals recommended by President Roosevelt in his recent message to congress.

RAISE MILLIONS

The alternative proposals would raise about $400,000,000 a year, it was estimated. They include higher taxes on gasoline, reimposition of the bank check tax, a tax of 10 percent sales of slot machines, elimination of present corporation dividend exemptions from the normal individual income tax, and a special surtax on unearned income.

Chairman Samuel B. Hill, Democrat, Washington, of the house ways and means sub-committee, said the treasury's suggestions would be studied along with other recommendations. He and Speaker Joseph W. Byrns said there would be no general revision of income schedules at this session.

TAX OPPOSED

In the unsigned memorandum accompanying the treasury's new suggestions, it was indicated the administration opposed the manufacturers excise tax, higher levies on tobacco, gasoline and admissions, reimposition of the bank check tax and another blow at incomes in the lower brackets.

"Further increases in surtaxes in the upper brackets alone would offer relatively small additional federal revenues," the memorandum said. "It would be possible, of course, to raise substantial revenues by increasing the normal and surtax rates applicable to incomes of $4000 to $25,000 by further lowering exemptions and credits for dependents."

A New Idea for Automobile Touring

Nash "400" and LaFayette sedan bodies in 1936 regular production series are equipped with seat and back cushions so mounted that they may be "made up" into a full-width, full-length bed, much as a Pullman berth or section is "made up." When not used for sleeping purposes the interior preserves its conventional detail. For overnight trips and touring this new type of dual-purpose car promotes economy in travel and assures sleeping accommodations wherever night may overtake the motorist. Birthday Ball Reports Shows Profit Of $239

A sum of $239.60 was cleared by the Birthday Ball held in Richmond in January, according to a report made last evening at the meeting of the committee held under the direction of E. L. Orr.

According to this preliminary report, the ball brought in $323.43 and $83.83 was spent for arrangements. However, there is still a number of ticket holders to be heard from.

Another meeting of the committee will probably be held in the near future, it was announced.

Sailor Will Be Freed Of Charge

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—UP—A representative of the district attorney's office will appear in Superior court Monday to move dismissal of murder charges against Henry Golombek, 22, navy petty officer, charged with killing Helen Louise Tarbox, District Attorney Matthew Brady announced today.

Golombek has had two trials on the charge. Both juries failed to reach an agreement. The second jury was discharged last night after more than 24 hours' deliberation.

NEW DEALERS FRIGHTENED BY BUSINESS VOTE

WASHINGTON, March 6.—UP—New Deal leaders were disclosed tonight to be forging a powerful new weapon to combat expected big business opposition in the forth coming election campaign.

Orders went down the congressional line for swift action within the next two weeks on an almost unheralded bill providing stiff penalties for firms attempting to coerce their employes during national elections.

PASSED BY SENATE

The bill was introduced originally in the Senate by Senator Frederick Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana. Without debate it unanimously passed the Senate February 4. It was referred to the House judiciary committee where a subcommittee headed by representative Zebulon Weaver, Democrat, North Carolina, has it in charge.

"I am familiar with that bill," Speaker Joseph W. Byrns said. "You need have no apprehension but that it will be taken up promptly and passed, if and when it is brought out of the rules committee."

TERRIFIC PRESSURE

Byrns parried questions as to who sponsored the bill but it was said in Congressional cloakrooms that there is terrific pressure behind it.

Byrns said he personally felt it was "a good bill" to insure fair elections and that numerous congressmen had been urging it strenuously.

The bill, a brief 16 line affair, is admittedly packed with political dynamite.

Americans Win Big Victory In Arms Conference

LONDON, March 6.—UP—American delegates won a sweeping victory in the world naval limitation conference today when the technical committee accepted their proposal for battleships of 35,000 tons with 14-inch guns.

With today's agreement a vital part of the new pact, restricting the tonnages and gun armaments of every type of warship, is complete and awaits merely a final polishing before adoption by the full conference.

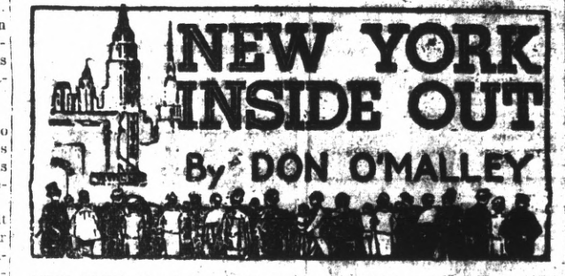

The battleship limitation clause will be embodied in the impending treaty together with an accord providing for exchange of information regarding proposed naval construction.

Narrow Escape

EIGHT SEAMSTRESSES, working on a WPA project in Los Angeles, were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes. They were rushed to a receiving hospital and given first aid. They were not seriously injured.

NEW YORK, March 6.— Success stories a la capsule: Vic Erwin became an orchestra leader at the age of fifteen by a very simple ruse. He was playing fiddle in the old Hotel Knickerbocker orchestra at the time. Tired of playing under someone else, he applied at another hotel for a conductor's job. He was, he said, from Ben Bernie's office—which he wasn't— and he promptly got the job. Then he rushed to Bernie (until then they'd never met) and explained the situation. Bernie didn't have the heart to spill the beans—and, P. S., Vic kept the job.—About ten years ago a French artist named Soutine was starving in a Paris garret, barely able to buy enough paints for his pictures. His reputation traveled among connoisseurs, however, and every once in a while he would make a sale. Among his early customers was the head of the Barnes Foundation in Philadelphia. Mr. Barnes, whose famous collection specializes in modern masters, picked up several dozen Soutines at prices ranging from $15 to $40. His purchases, too, helped spread the fame of the painter's art. A couple of weeks ago the Valentine gallery held a one-man show of Soutine's latest work. Mr. Barnes bought two of the larger canvases —one at $1400 and the other at $1,600.

RESCUE—Tradition makes newspaper men tough guys, but this little tale is as coagulated an item as you would want. It's about a 250-pound reporter on a now defunct tabloid who was sent out on a story by his square-jawed city editor. The burly reporter was told to get not only the story, but some hot pictures as well—or else to forget about his job.

A couple of hours later the chief of detectives got the city editor on the wire.

"Say," he began, "that reporter of yours got pretty tough."

"What's the matter," queried the editor.

"Well, he started breaking into the house, and everything; and I finally had to pull a gun on him."

"My God!" exclaimed the city room overseer. "You didn't hurt him, did you?"

"No," was the slow reply; "but I'd like to get that gun back."

TENACIOUS—The hard-boiled story local newspapermen like particularly, however, is the one about Charles Chaplin, famous editor of the old Evening Wail. Chaplin once sent a reporter to interview a certain banker whose violent temper and dislike of newspapermen was notorious.

The reporter did manage to get into the banker's office, but that was about all. He was thrown bodily out of the building. When he had patched up his cuts and bruises, he hobbled back into Chaplin's office. There he gave a detailed account of his misadventures with the banker.

"And," concluded the reporter, "he said that he'd do worse if I ever came around again."

"You go back," shouted Chaplin wrathfully, "and tell that guy I can't intimidate ME!"

Hearing On Bay Bridge Railroad Traffic Resumed

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—UP—Hearings on applications of the Key System and the Southern Pacific to operate interurban train service over the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge were resumed today before the state railroad commission with Commissioners Wallace Ware, Frank Devlin and M. B. Harris sitting as a board to hear the testimony.

Attorneys representing bay cities, the toll bridge authority and the transportation systems attended the hearing today.

Opposition to the proposed contracts, under which the transportation concerns agree to abandon present ferry service and not increase rates above present ferry rates for at least 15 months, was expressed by Will C. Locke, representing Alameda. He asserted the proposed plan would cause long delay to Alameda commuters in reaching their destination.

An Alameda representative also introduced a plan for a tunnel which assertedly would provide faster access to the trains.

NEW YORK HIT ON FILM BILL AT FOX SUNDAY

"Anything Goes," the Paramount presentation of the show that played New York for a year, comes to the Fox tomorrow together with "Man Hunt," starring Ricardo Cortez, Marguerite Churchill, William Gargan and Chic Sale.

"Anything Goes," places Bing Crosby foremost in its nonsensical drama. He is in a role calculated to bring out his comic gifts as well as his familiar talent for song. He figures as a lad who stows away in evening dress on a transatlantic liner, and falls heir to the passport of a notorious gangster, "Public Enemy No. 1" The rest of the voyage is devoted to his efforts to escape arrest, and also to win the girl of his dreams.

Ethel Merman, queen of hot-cha blues, sings the Cole Porter songs she sang on Broadway, and clowns at Reno Sweeny, the ex-evangelist and torch singer. Charlie Ruggles shows as the meek clergyman, with Arthur Treacher sharing the laughs as the Englishman who uses American slang in the wrong places. Grace Bradley, as his "moll," and Ida Lupino as the object of Crosby's affection, are decorative principals.

"Man Hunt," which emerges as a "Front Page" of the hinterlands gives an amusing slant on the timely pursuit of bandits. The story concerns a small town reporter, his sweetheart, the country school teacher, a bank bandit, who has escaped from prison, and a former ex-sheriff.

"Exclusive Story," starring Franchot Tone, Madge Evans and Stuart Erwin plays for the last times today at the Fox on the same program with "Rose of the Rancho," starring Gladys Swarthout and Jon Boles.

Man Pleads Guilty To Battery Charge

Pleading guilty to charges of battery, Cornelius O'Keefe, 51, of 2931 San Luis street, Richmond Annex, appeared before Police Judge C. A. Odell yesterday morning. He will appear today for sentence.

O'Keefe was arrested on the complaint of his wife.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, March 6—UP — Here is one of the most amazing confessions in recent newspaper history.

Innumerable expeditions have gone to the jungles of Brazil to find Paul Redfern, the aviator supposed to be still alive and living among the tropical Indians.

Now the man first spread the word that Redfern was living as a "white god" in Brazil comes forward with the statement that it was all a hoax.

He is Card Liddle, newspaperman and author of "moon books."

"It was a straight 'moon hoax' story," said Liddle in an exclusive statement to the Merry-Go-Round. "I cooked it up. I was merely and only trying to sell a book.

"However, this yarn sent more expeditions to South America looking for Paul Redfern than I said books."

The story Card Liddle started was that Redfern probably landed on some jungle river or lake, and because he had come down from the sky, was hailed as a "white god" by the Indians. Liddle believed that Redfern must be held in a special shrine by the Indians and given the best of care so that he could not escape.

After first giving out this story, Liddle says that he "sent photoprints to all the air pilots in the United States, Canada, Central and South America; also to members of the Explorers Club and every anthropologist in the United States."

"It's very seldom that old police reporters, like myself, make confessions," Liddle said.

"But ascertaining real evidence on Paul Redfern is as simple as A. B. C. All that has to be done is to have the Brazilian authorities pass word along to all the tribes in and around the alleged position, where rumors claim Redfern cracked up, that a ransom of 1,000 machetes, plus 1,000 steel spearheads will be paid to the tribe that brings in Paul Redfern alive, or a piece of the plane or some of his clothing or personal effects.

"Such a ransom, on e those Indians hear about it, will turn every stick and stone in that particular wilderness.

"This will solve the mystery and forever put an end to 'moon hoax stories.'"

RADIO ROOSEVELT

Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, is going into the broadcasting business on a big scale. He has just acquired options to buy three radio stations, WACO at Waco, Texas, KTAT at Fort Worth, and KOMA at Oklahoma City, all a part of the Southwest Broadcasting System.

LOANS TO INDUSTRY

The problem of government loans to private industry once again has been put on the President's desk and is receiving serious attention.

Reason for revival of interest is the fact that all the Administration's ballyhoo regarding loans to industry has produced actual advances of only $78,000,000. And Congress had authorized the lending of $580,000,000.

Approximately half was to be loaned through the Federal Reserve banks and about half through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. But, despite the easing of collateral requirements by Congress last year, most of these millions have been lying idle in RFC and Federal Reserve strong-boxes.

In the files of Reserve banks are close to 8,000 loan applications. The total approved to date is slightly over 2,000. A similar situation exists in the RFC.

SPECIAL STUDY

Last summer Dr. Jacob Viner, special assistant to Secretary Morgenthau, made an extended study of the situation and filed a report heavily criticising the elaborate red tape necessary before applicants obtain a loan. He found that sometimes the cost of obtaining a loan was almost as much as the amount sought.

Despite Viner's reproofs nothing was done until recently, when a bill was introduced in Congress to establish an independent "bank" for small loans to industry.

With business men and members of Congress displaying keen interest in the plan, the White House began to take notice. At its request the Treasury has taken the matter under advisement again.

JETSAM

Unnoticed in the crowd that surged around the entrance of the Harvard Fly Club to see the President the other night was a typical O. Henry character, a human derelict.

He arrived too late to see Roosevelt come in and so stood there for two hours in the bitter cold, not moving an inch. He was so nondescript that police and secret service men did not bother him, although everyone else finally was excluded from the area.

When the President emerged, by previous arrangement he stepped forward to speak to a girl stricken with paralysis. Simultaneously the old fellow pressed forward to shake his hand, but was shoved back.

He went away muttering: "They pushed me back. I was going to shake his hand, but they pushed me back. Greatest President since Lincoln, but they pushed me back."

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.—UP — Three-quarters of the criticism of motion pictures in comparison with the speaking stage has been because of the screen's lack of color, it often is admitted. The advent of full color on the screen is an important step toward reality, toward mirroring life and nature as they are, says Jonas Lie, president of the National Academy of Design and outstanding American artist.

Lie's work is on view at the Metropolitan Museum of New York, the Carnegie Institute, the Luxembourg, the Boston Museum, the Corcoran Gallery in Washington and in the collection of Crown Prince Olaf of Norway.

"One of the fundamental criticisms of the screen has been its failure to give us color heretofore" Lie declares. "Full value color simply completes that which was incomplete. In painting, color supplies half of our values.

"The artist never finds all the elements in his natural subject—sky, background and foreground. No. There is always something missing. But he takes home what he finds to suit him today, and keeps that. Perhaps the sky of yesterday would complete the picture of today. And nature and color can play tricks on you."

Fatigue also is a factor, he explains. The eye, fatigued with bright color, sometimes sees in neutral shades colors of which it was not tired.

"Just one of the problems that the designer of color for the screen must face and answer," Mr. Lie said. "New problems, new responsibilities and new vistas all will be brought by full value color on the screen," says Lie.

CHAPTER 1

MARIANNE MINEAR huddled close to her locker while the ten Seniors who comprised the Senior Play cast passed by. She had wanted to be in that play! Monte Thurston was in it and to be separated from Monte during graduation—the biggest event of their lives—was tragedy.

Of course Sabra Anderson was in it. She belonged to the Dramatic Art Class, which was included in the college preparatory course. But girls like Marianne who had to go to work after graduation took the course in practical business training.

Sabra had the lead in the play. Monte had to kiss her! Of course it was just acting, but Monte was the sun and moon and stars to Marianne.

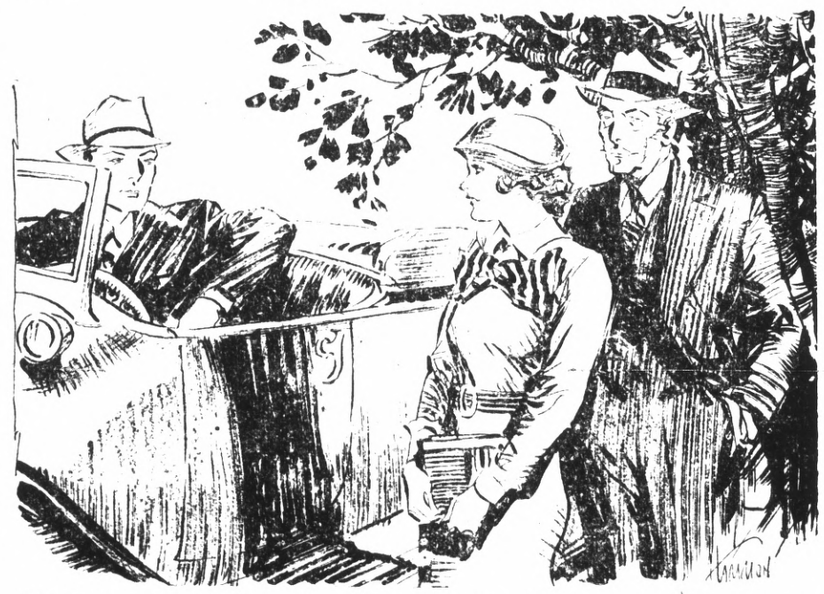

She watched the play cast go by, then took her books from her locker and left the school.

AS SHE neared home she saw two men sitting in front of the house. She noticed that the car bore a New York license.

One of the men, middle-aged and stout, climbed out as she approached. "Can you tell me where the owner of this property will be home?"

"My mother owns it," Marianne answered. "She should be home now."

As she spoke, she noticed the other occupant of the car—a good-looking young man. He was looking at her, and his eyes were the bluest and twinklingest she had ever seen. Marianne was suddenly conscious that she hadn't bothered to powder her nose or to tidy her tousled curls before she had left school.

The young man was looking at her, and his eyes were the bluest and twinklingest she had ever seen

She couldn't have stood high school in Centerville if it hadn't been for Monte. A girl without smart clothes or money or prestige in a small town like Centerville just got lost in the shuffle.

It had been different when she was a small girl. She had lived on the Boulevard then—next door to Monte. Then her father died and little by little all that the Minears had had slipped away. By the time Marianne was fifteen they had moved to their only remaining property—a shabby little house in the wrong end of town.

Eve, her older sister, had taken a job in a fruit factory owned by Charley Forham. His attentions to Eve and bickering with his wife had become a particularly choice piece of gossip about Centerville.

Monte had made all these things bearable for Marianne. He had been loyal to her.

"You're the prettiest girl in town," he often declared. "Most femmes spend hours putting on paint and powder but—say, you're just a natural!"

But during her Senior year, everything had gone wrong. First, all that talk about Eve and Charley Forham. Then there had been less and less money. And finally Monte's growing interest, lately, in Sabra. Marianne hadn't been able to afford a Class Day dress, and Sabra's had been so alluring. Monte had stared at her and finally remarked: "Gee, Sabra is getting to be a looker!" All these things had combined to make Marianne heavy-hearted.

"I wish she'd hurry." The older man consulted his watch. "Here——"

He extended a card to Marianne. It bore the name "O. R. Gleason," a New York address and the words "Real Estate."

"Tell your mother I'll be back this evening. I may want to buy this place."

Marianne gulped. They had been trying to sell it for so long and never had a prospect.

"If you'll just wait," she said eagerly. "We—we want to sell."

"Oh, you want to sell? I presume your mother realizes the place isn't worth——"

"Don't kid her." The young man in the car smiled at Marianne as he spoke. "It's worth a good deal because the railroad wants it for a——"

"Shut up!" roared Gleason.

He jumped into the car and quickly drove away, his angry voice floating back to Marianne.

She looked after the car in amazement. Then tiny dimples suddenly appeared in her cheeks as her teeth flashed in a smile. That nice young man had deliberately told her that their property was worth a tidy sum to Gleason!

MARIANNE could hardly wait for Gleason to return that evening. When he did come Mrs. Minear called in a lawyer an old friend of the family and the little home was sold finally for twenty-five hundred dollars.

The young man was not with Gleason. Marianne was disappointed. She couldn't forget his blue eyes, honest and laughing, looking after her with such frank admiration.

After the deal was closed and the men had gone, Marianne skipped about the room.

"Now I can have my graduation dress, Mother!"

"You'll have it." Her mother's voice was happy. "The nicest gown we can find. You've had to go through high school with nothing and——"

She was interrupted by the sound of a key in the front door. It was Eve.

"I kept your dinner in the oven——" Mrs. Minear began.

"Don't want any." Eve answered jerkily, and sank into a chair.

"Tell her the news! Quick!" Marianne caroled.

SOMEHOW Eve's white face did not seem to fit in with the joy of the moment. On learning the news she jumped up tensely.

"Twenty-five hundred dollars! Mother, will you let me have a thousand? I'll go to New York—take that interior-decorating course I've always wanted. I'll leave tomorrow—in the morning!" Her voice rose hysterically. "You can call the factory and tell Char—Mr. Forham I've gone. But don't tell him where!"

"Eve!" There was dismay in Mrs. Minear's voice. "You can't do that. I had thought, after Marianne's graduation, we might open a little tea room or——"

"In this burg!" Eve interrupted harshly. "Never! I hate this place! I want to get away—I must get away!"

"Eve, honey—this is our home. You're just tired and nervous. One of these days you'll meet someone——"

"Not in this town." Eve's eyes were brooding. "Not when fellows have plenty of girls to choose from in the Country Club crowd." She flung herself into a chair. "I'm twenty-seven! And getting older every day. Mother, I've got to get away. A poor girl hasn't a chance here! Let me have the money——"

Mrs. Minear sighed. "Let me think it over," she finally said, twisting her hands together. "We have so little, and need so much——"

Eve stood up. "Don't . . ." she said jerkily, "think too long." She went to her room and closed the door.

SECOND OAKLAND SYMPHONY WILL BE HELD MONDAY

The Oakland Symphony orchestra of 95 players, will give their second concert of the 1936 series, on Monday evening, at the Oakland Auditorium Theater. Orley See, conductor, has announced a varied program to include: Cesar Franck's D Minor Symphony; Wagner's Prelude to Lohengrin; Mendelssohn's Overture, 'Ruy Blas'; Dohnany's 'Variations on a Nursery Tune.'

Of special interest is the Dohany 'Variations' as this will be its first known performance with orchestra, west of Chicago. It was first played by the composer with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in 1924, and although a major work for piano and orchestra, is built upon a simple folk tune of three tones and depicts all the quaint imagery and sly humor of an Alice in Wonderland.

A feature of each of the Oakland Symphony concerts has been at least one American composition and more frequently, that of a local composer. Californians whose works have been heard are: Holyc Carpenter, of Stockton; Alfred Arriola, of San Francisco; August Hinrichs, of Oakland; Paul Martin of Oakland; Albert Elkus conductor of the University of California Symphony, and now, Howard Eastwood of Alameda.

The Oakland Symphony now in its second year of formal concerts, is the outgrowth of the former Oakland Y. M. C. A. Concert Orchestra, organized about 10 years ago under the patronage of the "Y."

Reduction of families will be affected gradually, but by June 30 the quota of 142,450 family heads will be cut to 109,450, the order stated.

Officials explained that few projects would be left unfinished as most of the completion dates will be reached before the June 30 deadline.

FOUR OFFICERS ACQUITTED IN WOMAN'S DEATH

ELIZABETH, N. J., March 6.—UP—Four former deputy sheriffs, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Sophie Crempa in a feud with a utilities company, were acquitted tonight.

A jury which deliberated three hours decided that Charles Remley and three brothers — Edward, Richard and Vincent Carolan — were not guilty.

The shooting grew out of an eight year fight which John Crempa waged in an attempt to prevent the New Jersey Public Service and Electric Company from running power lines across his farm.

He short circuited the power lines several times, and the four deputies were ordered to serve a warrant, charging criminal contempt.

When they attempted to serve the warrant, shooting started. Mrs. Crempa was killed and her husband was wounded.

The defense of the deputies was that the Crempas opened fire first, but testimony also was produced tending to show that the family was unarmed.

CAUSES OF COUGHING

Imagine your embarrassment if just at the most exciting moment in a moving picture, you feel a tickling in your throat and start out on a prolonged coughing spell. The worst of it is that one good cough calls for another, and you keep on coughing until everyone is looking at you. If you belong to that vast army of people who are embarrassed every winter by disturbing coughing spells, you will appreciate learning the causes of coughing.

The cough is nature's way of getting rid of something that should not have been admitted. If you will watch yourself next time you cough you will note that just before the cough, you open your mouth and swallow a gulp of air. The extra air is used to give more force to the act of coughing.

There are many different things which will make you cough. When you swallow food down your windpipe, you will cough heroically to get it out. Once it is coughed up your distress is gone. Most coughs, however, are due to irritating mucus which generally collects in the bronchial tubes. As the secretion of mucus accumulates, the nerves become excited. The cough follows and the mucus is coughed out.

Excessive smoking or inhaling irritating gases may also result in throat irritation and coughing. Another common cause is mouth breathing, as the air is not properly warmed when this method of breathing is permitted. When the air is breathed through the nose, it is warmed before it reaches the bronchial tubes.

You may not be aware that gastric irritation will sometimes cause coughing, but it seems that this may occur because of the fact that some of the nerves which supply the stomach also supply the bronchial passages and therefore an irritation in the stomach may produce a reflex irritation in the air passages.

Occasionally, the nervous patient may develop a habit cough, which is a quick, dry cough. In such cases, an effort should be made to overcome the habit of coughing.

The first treatment for either an acute or chronic cough is the short fast on fruit juice. In many cases, the cough promptly subsides from the use of this measure alone. The type of cough which is most likely to be helped by the fasting regimen is the cough due to colds, bronchitis, influenza, and throat irritation. Naturally, if the cough is due to tuberculosis of the lungs, it can not be expected to disappear quickly. During the time the patient is on the fast it is important that at least one plain warm water enema be taken each day.

Usually the best results will be secured in preventing a return of the cough, if the patient makes some dietary changes following the fast. It is a good plan to eat more of the salad vegetables and also to use the cooked non-starchy vegetables in abundance. Starch and sugar should be omitted for a time and the avoidance of these foods will help to reduce mucus formation.

Chronic coughs always have a systemic cause and you should find the cause and remove it. Very often, a great deal of relief will be obtained by going to a doctor having a deep therapy light and allowing him to bake the chest and upper back under the light.

One good rule to remember is this: when you have a cough, avoid chilling, and try to remain comfortably warm at all times.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Foods Beneficial to Hair)

Question: Mrs. Lotenna K. writes: "I wish to know which foods contain minerals beneficial to the hair. Does the violet ray help to bring blood to the scalp?"

Answer: A loss of hair may result from several causes, such as: (1) Severe toxemia during a fever. (2) Poor circulation of the scalp. (3) Diseases of the scalp. (4) A lack of mineral elements in the diet. The mineral that is usually lacking is silicon, and it is found most abundantly in the following foods: Asparagus, cucumbers, lettuce, bran, dandelion, parsnips, fruit skins, strawberries and beets. If the hair roots are not entirely dead, a well-balanced diet containing a good proportion of these foods accompanied by a vigorous massage of the scalp and any other treatments which will increase the circulation should be beneficial. The violet ray, while not specifically helpful to growing the hair, might assist in increasing the local circulation. I have usually found that the ultra-violet ray is most satisfactory for this purpose. This ray is also present in sunlight.

(Raisins and Nuts)

Question: Bob asks: "What do you think about raisins? Is it all right to use raisins and nuts together as a lunch?"

Answer: Dried raisins are a wholesome food and may be stewed after being well washed and soaked over night in enough water to cover them. Cook slowly in the same water for as long as possible in order to bring out the natural sugar. If you wish to use nuts with raisins as a lunch occasionally and if you find that you digest the combination readily, it would be all right to do so.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

A Few Words on Nail Ridges, Appetiteless Babies, and Drowsiness

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

MANY persons in writing me to ask a question or two apologize for so doing and explain a desire not to bother me. No apology is necessary, and their questions are not a bother. It may bother me to answer their letters intelligently, because I do not always receive enough information to determine what their trouble is. I do not know enough about them presonally to give adequate advice; but I find it much easier to write about something in which I am sure some one is interested and in answering their questions I may be answering the unexpressed questions of many others.

DR. CHRISMAN

Write your questions fully and I shall answer them to the best of my ability. The answer can scarcely appear for several weeks. Your name and address will not be used.

V. E. asks what causes the finger nails to have hard ridges in them; also how one can tell when he has acidosis. I have just concluded an an article on acidosis, which says that mild cases of acidosis can not be detected except by laboratory examination, and that kind is not serious.

V. E. does not say whether the ridges on the nails are transverse (across the nail) or longitudinal from root to tip. Transverse ridges are the record of the number of serious sicknesses you have had. They show how seriously the nail growth has been retarded.

From Root to Tip

Ridges from root to tip are the marks of irregular hardening of the nail, due to some injury or diseased condition occuring in the nail fold (the thin ridge of skin at the root of nail where the skin and nail meet), or of some severe general disturbance, such as diabetes, gout, arthritis, or general infection. Treatment consists of treating the cause, and it will take time for a normal nail to grow.

Mrs. E. M. W. states that her daughter has a fifteen months' old baby girl who does not eat. It will take a few bites and quit; a little orange juice, grape or tomato juice, a little milk or prepared food, but not enough to nourish it, otherwise it seems well.

This confirms the old saying, "You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink." It is a rather common condition and often tests our ingenuity to solve the problem. Of course, something is wrong, but what is it? It may be a lack of digestive juices in the mouth or stomach.

A little bitter tonic such as the "Elixir of Iron, Quinine and Strychnine," eight or ten drops in water a short time before meals may help. It is bitter, but often stimulates a flagging appetite. Often vitamins are lacking. Cod liver oil is indicated. Baby may fight it, and we try to avoid any irritation before feeding, because that interferes with digestion. Cod liver oil is now manufactured in very concentrated form and only two or three drops are required four or five times a day.

Easy to Take

Chocolate-coated tablets containing concentrated cod liver oil are on the market, and almost any child will eat them as candy. They can be given freely, and it is scarcely possible to give too much. Indeed, we usually err in giving too little. It is not only an appetizer, but a food.

Plenty of outdoors, sunlight, freedom, and exercise will be helpful. She asks if some form of Iron might help. Yes, either in the form of the Elix or Syrup, or a still more pleasant form, Syrup of the Iodide of Iron, four or five drops in water three or four times a day.

Miss I. F. C. wants to know the cause of drowsiness. Cannot sit quietly for ten minutes without falling asleep. Cannot attend church without falling asleep. (Not an uncommon complaint). I'll wager she doesn't fall asleep at a good picture show. Her arms feel heavy and numb when she sits awhile. Thinks her blood is too thick. Well, it may be too thin.

Drowsiness is an anaemia of the brain. That is, the brain does not receive a steady flow of good, well-aerated blood. The circulation is often sluggish or weak. Heart tonics or slight stimulants will be helpful. The liver is usually inactive.

Try a saline laxative each morning for several weeks. More exercise, light diet of fruits and vegetables, a large amount of outdoor air, less reading and more play, with reduction of weight, if too heavy, will overcome this trouble.

Dr. Chrisman offers readers the privilege of addressing questions to him care of this column. He will answer questions of general interest in his regular daily column on this page.

Preventing Sogginess

When sandwich filling is mixed with sauce or cream, the sandwich will not become soggy if the bread is toasted on one side, using the toasted sides on the outside. This makes it possible for such a sandwich to be eaten with the fingers.

Profiles For Today

Frances Marion a Dynamo of Energy

By TALBOT LAKE

MANY women have attained great success in many different fields, but my own opinion is that one of the most brilliant of all is Frances Marion, the No. 1 scenario and story writer of the motion picture industry. Film artisans other than actors and directors are somewhat obscured, and for that reason Miss Marion is not well known to the general public.

However, when it comes to dollars and cents let it be said her pay check exceeds that of all but a very few stars, for she is one of the most valuable properties in Hollywood.

Her career is almost unbelievable in activity. Her early ambition was to be a great painter, and she intended to go to Europe to study. Fate entered to prevent this, for she found herself making money as a commercial artist. Her second phase came when she gave up commercial art and went into newspaper work. She did well for herself, and topped it off by going to Europe during the war as a government observer. She was the first foreign woman to enter Germany after the Armistice.

Next on the program was a period of writing short stories, many of which were accepted and later found their way into motion pictures. Miss Marion noticed they came out quite differently on the screen and that got her interested in movies. She began to write originals and make the scenario herself. That started it, and she became really identified with the industry.

A great many of Mary Pickford's pictures were written by Frances Marion, while others of her originals and adaptations include "The Big House," "Min and Bill," "The Secret Six," "Anna Christie," "The Champ," "Emma" and so many others they can't be enumerated here.

Besides her regular work she is a first rate pianist, studying constantly to improve her technique; she also takes singing and language lessons. And besides that, she manages to find time to write fiction. A recent book of hers is "Valley People."

But this is still not all; despite all this activity she is rated as good looking as many of the stars.

Guide to Charm

Forehead Is Indicator of Girl's Habits

By JACQUELINE HUNT

YOUR eyes tell much about your character, but it is your forehead that reveals all of your bad little habits—and some of your thoughts. When you permit yourself to be annoyed by every little thing it acquires wrinkles. When you are careless in grooming it literally screams the fact to those you meet. When you are careful and give it a little attention, however, it adds much to your beauty.

If you want a lovely forehead there are several things to be considered. The condition of the skin is probably the most important, although the shape and grooming of the eyebrows also influence the attractiveness of the forehead. Most of you know how to keep your eyebrows well-groomed, but some of you may be careless and probably have never thought of the problem at all in relation to your forehead.

MISS HUNT

For most faces, especially when the forehead is high, wide, and nicely shaped, the eyebrows should be fairly heavy, but smooth and balanced. There are many variations in the shape of the arch. Preserve the arch that follows most nearly the shape of the eye socket and gives your eyebrows a clear-cut line.

Before plucking eyebrows brush them straight up, using a small brush. Then laying the brush along the brow near the nose draw it gently all the way to the outer corner. This puts all of the hairs in their place and gives you the line of the natural arch to guide you. It is a simple matter to remove the hairs that lie outside of this line. If your natural line isn't good use an eyebrow pencil and trace the most becoming line, removing the hairs lying outside.

Now for the forehead. Cleanliness is the first step toward improvement. Always cleanse your forehead after you have brushed your hair so you can remove any dead skin cells or dust that may have fallen there. Draw the hair away and bind it in place. Apply a film of cleansing cream, allow it to remain on a minute or two, and remove with tissues. Apply a second film and do not remove this immediately, but dip your wash cloth in very warm water, squeeze it out and lay across the forehead.

Repeat as soon as the cloth feels cool. When the skin is relaxed, wash gently with a suds of mild soap and warm water. Rinse thoroughly with warm water and then cool. Pat dry and massage with a good softening cream. This treatment will do much to keep your brow free from lines. Place the fingertips near the bridge of the nose, press firmly, and pull down just a little. Slip the fingers up a fraction of an inch, pull down, relax and move the fingers up a little higher. When you reach the hairline, lift the fingers and place them on the ends of the eyebrows near the temples and repeat the upward massage.

Next smooth the fingers across the forehead from temple to temple, covering the entire forehead. Remove the excess cream with skin tonic and finish with an ice rub. If you are going out, apply your cosmetics immediately; if not, omit the ice rub and leave just the tiniest bit of cream on the skin overnight.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "My problem is a little different from most. I have always had a good position and plenty of money to spend until lately. As a result I have depended on beauty shops for facials, shampoos, waves and manicures. Now when I can scarcely spare a dollar a week for treatments I'm helpless. Can you tell me how I can look my best?—D. E. R."

The first thing you should do is to make yourself a cosmetic and beauty budget. If you can put aside as much as a dollar a week for professional attention, then you can obviously afford only one treatment a week.

Learn to shampoo your own hair except on very special occasions and save money that way. You can make a perfectly good shampoo liquid by melting the odds and ends of bathroom soap in hot water. That week then you can have a facial. The following week give yourself a simple home facial and have a professional manicure or waveset. Such a scheme will enable you to have some professional care and at the same time learn to do things for yourself.

Boston Cream Pie

Boston cream pie is no more than layer cake with a custard cream filling. Bake one layer, and when it has cooled cut it horizontally, making two layers. Now use a generous layer of custard cream filling between the layers of cake, and as a finishing touch sprinkle the top of the cake with powdered sugar.

New Evening Type Gowns Drop Trains

By IRENE VAIL

New York—The newest evening dresses give positive proof of the trend toward eliminating trains, and with this is noted the spreading hemline, widening from the hips, though hips are smooth. It is significant that so many of these trainless dresses are wide-skirted instead of slim, as are most of the others with trains. Sheer stiff lace with a glistening surface as a specification, is prominent in this type of dress, either in bright metal patterning, or with transparent spangle embroidery. But satin and taffeta, the latter always in novelty weave, are also favored.

Rose color is registering throughout the fashion reports from the south, and in connection with costumes and accessories designed for cruise wear. Throughout the Southern collections, this fancy for pinks, for rose tones, for real "old rose," for American Beauty—all colors, stands out over and over again in costumes and accessories. One important coat house reports selling more pinks than even the various blues, which are always headliners.

The importance of the pink to rose range has been reported as worn at resorts. Light tints, old rose shades, and coral all represented. Each day there is fresh evidence that this novelty group will be heard from during the spring season, as well as the earlier travel season when the pastel or high shade is taken for granted. The shades talked of for spring include: Rose-beige — represented in monotone tweeds designated as "tea-rose" — called "peach" by others.

QUESTION: "I am planning a little get-together. I plan to typewrite short notes of invitation. Would this be correct?—L. V."

ANSWER: Anyone who can operate a typewriter uses it for social correspondence today. But a letter of invitation is in better taste when written by hand. It carries with it a more personal touch.

QUESTION: "I am asking some friends to come for the week-end. Shall I ask them to come for lunch Saturday or dinner?

—Mrs. D. C."

ANSWER: It is customary for week-end parties to begin with the dinner. The guests start arriving in the afternoon and go to their rooms at once. This gives them a chance to rest and get settled before dinner, if they have traveled a long way.

QUESTION: "Is it customary to wait until everyone has been served before beginning to eat?

—A. I."

ANSWER: Well-bred persons always do.

Dishes for Today

Cooking Bacon Is Simple, But There's a Correct Way

By JUDITH WILSON

SIMPLE as it seems to bring tempting gold-and-brown strips of bacon cooked to exactly the right crispiness to the table, it is an accomplishment amateur cooks sometimes strive for years to learn.

Dry, crisp, delicately-browned bacon strips or curls make a plate of eggs or a creamed mixture something to write poems about. So today I have a few hints on frying bacon and preparing other goodies for the breakfast table.

The secret of frying bacon is to have the bacon very cold, and the frying pan barely hot. The bacon should be turned often and the excess fat drained off two or three times during cooking. When the bacon has reached the desired shade of brown, lift the rashers carefully to absorbent paper, then to a hot platter. If you want curls of bacon, roll around the tines of a fork while very hot and still soft and allow to cool slightly and set.

An easier method is to broil the bacon on a rack several inches below the flame and to turn it several times. Both the broiler rack and bacon should be cold to begin with.

Pineapple Pancakes

Whole wheat-pineapple pancakes are something new for breakfast. Beat 4 eggs well and add to 1½ cups of milk. Sift 1 cup flour with 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar and 2 teaspoons baking powder, then mix with 1 cup whole wheat flour. Mix the liquid and dry mixtures and add 1 cup of crushed well-drained pineapple and 2 tablespoons melted butter. Bake on a hot griddle. Serve with lots of butter and shaved maple sugar.

Fritters

Fritters are also popular for those who like something a bit sweet for breakfast. Make a batter with 1 cup sifted flour, 1 teaspoon of baking powder, a pinch of salt, 2 well beaten eggs and 1 tablespoon sugar. Add milk enough to make a thick batter. Dip thick slices of apple or orange into the batter and fry in ham fat or deep fat. Drain and sprinkle lightly with powdered sugar.

Broiled Bananas

Bananas either wrapped in strips of bacon and broiled, turning frequently, or prepared with sausages are delicious. For the latter, peel the bananas, cut in halves and split lengthwise, roll them in flour and then brown lightly in hot fat. Transfer to individual ramekins with small links sausages that have been fried. Pour a little rich cream sauce over the bananas and sausages and bake in a hot oven for a few minutes.

Baked Pears

Baked winter pears make breakfast into a festive occasion. Get slightly green pears, wash them and cut in halves. Remove the cores and into the cavities put a bit of lemon, a small dab of butter and 1 teaspoon of brown sugar. Sprinkle with cinnamon and put a little bit of hot water into the baking dish. Bake for 20 minutes, or until tender, in a moderately hot oven. Serve with or without cream.

Ham Souffle

Ham souffle is a breakfast dish that will start the day right. Pour 1½ cups scalded milk over 1½ cups bread crumbs and soak until soft. Add 4 tablespoons melted butter, 1 cup cooked ham, chopped, and 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in individual baking dishes for about 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

MODERN WOMEN

The Plight of a Widow Who Has Had no Male Companionship in Ten Years

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

SYMPATHETIC though I am with loneliness in all forms, it is not the province of this column to arrange for meetings of congenial souls. I prefer to leave something to fate, which I am reminded, "keeps on happening."

The letter which follows is evidently sincere. Perhaps because of this the writer should be cautioned against forcing acquaintances through other than usual natural social channels. The sort of companions one would attract through advertising for them would, I am sure, leave a great deal to be desired. It is not a course one would take unless in desperation, and that at best it is most dangerous.

MRS. MARTIN

A lone widow with a desire for congenial friends should affiliate herself with the church of her faith and should try for activity in the charitable functions of the church or of other organizations. She should cultivate women in her own stratum of society, for it is invariably through women that one contacts the right sort of men.

MRS. GOWARD

It's a Long Time

Ten years is a long time for a woman to have been deprived of the companionship of men. One might suppose such a woman might have, in that time, accustomed herself to her lonely lot. The woman who writes the following letter evidently has not, and feels life might hold a great deal for her, were it possible to meet a man whose background and temperament were such that she would be appreciated. Doubtless she is right, but in order to be appreciated by such a man she must do nothing to jeopardize her dignity or social position. In seeking the company of her kind through the usual social channels, she will eventually meet men of the right sort.

"Dear Mrs. Martin: Your articles I always find interesting and was especially pleased with the response of a widower about a woman who wishes to care for her home rather than follow her business career, to the evident disappointment of her husband. I would like to know of some way to make friends among men who are refined and trustworthy.

"I was happily married to a well-educated man, but was left a widow ten years ago. I have busied myself with teaching and tutoring to educate two children. They are now started in business for themselves, and I feel now for their sakes as well as my own I should seek friends of my own age and interests. Widowers can understand the problems and loneliness of a widow. We are sort of an outcast class in a way, and feel lost without a partner, no matter how full life may be.

Must Be Equality

"I am not one to go to public places and try to 'pick up,' friends. I am not too critical, but broad-minded and generous, yet there must be some equality of social background. I had thought of advertising, but while I would enjoy a correspondent, I would prefer one I could know personally.

"Perhaps you could tell me of some ways in which people can find friends of refinement who enjoy intelligent conversation and amusements—music, books and a good joke. Your suggestions or advice would be appreciated.

"Widow."

May I reiterate that any other course than those outlined are not to be considered by a woman who values her self-respect. It may be wrong to make the blanket charge that all women and men who resort to such methods are adventurers, but one can hardly be blamed for feeling that the rank and file of those who have to seek companionship through such methods have something wrong about them somewhere.

This is especially true of men who live high, wide, and handsome, and if at all personable are bound to meet women of all sorts and conditions. I will admit it is much more difficult for a lone woman to make new contacts than it is for a man, but I also must emphasize the point that it is correspondingly more dangerous. It never pays a woman to defy convention, or to turn pursuer.

You and Your Child

Child Shouldn't Hear Himself Discussed

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

NORMAN, two years old, wandered into the kitchen, and less than a second later mother heard shrieks, the sound of water splashing to the floor and the clatter of a pot. She rushed toward the screaming child trembling with dread, expecting to find that the worst thing possible had happened to him.

Fortunately for Norman, and by one of those queer quirks of fate, it proved nothing alarming. The youngster had simply overturned a pot of water standing on the gas range and drenched himself. It was upsetting to have to undress him, dry him off and get him into fresh clothes again. Mother scolded as she did this, and continued scolding while mopping up the flood in the kitchen. But though she stormed and preached she kept saying over and over to herself how lucky it was that the water had been cold instead of boiling.

When father returned from work early in the evening, mother told him about Norman's accident. "That was a close call," he agreed. "The water could easily have been hot instead of cold." He grinned, pleased that it had not been worse. Mother also had been smiling as she spoke, in restrospect the incident seemed amusing. But both soon checked their smiles. For Norman who had been watching them closely started grinning back at them. He assured them proudly, "Norman spill water on the floor," doubtless expecting to be acclaimed a hero. Based on his parents behavior he had a right to feel that way.

Regardless of how young a child may be, parents should refrain from discussing his actions before him. Particularly when they are blameworthy, the less said about his actions the better. It is a foolish mistake to keep reminding him of something which he ought to forget. Secondly, a child has an uncanny faculty for sensing what our real attitudes are, though we may smile or wink or by secret signs try to cover them.

Short Cuts

To give a low-ceilinged room the appearance of height, start the curtains above the windows on the window frames. Use floor length curtains and avoid ruffles and draperies.

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome

Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant

Either because of stomach disturbances, food fermentation, or the wearing of false teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). No wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of tiny bits of food on mouth, teeth, or dental plate surfaces.

This safe antiseptic and quick deodorant works quickly. It cleanses mouth, teeth, and gum surfaces. Halts fermentation and putrefaction, a major cause of odors, and then counteracts the odors themselves.

Try using Listerine every two or three days. See how much more wholesome it leaves your mouth. How it sweetens your breath. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

member of the Realty Advisory Board, the organization which refuses to budge in its opposition to the union or even to consent to arbitration. The settlement reached between the Prudence Company and the union was a compromise. The union won its demand for a $2 a week salary increase for all members. It did not get a contract calling for a closed shop. Instead, the Prudence Company agreed to a "preferential shop", which meant it consented to give union men first chance at any new jobs that become available.

The agreement was signed at city hall in the presence of Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, who is urging individual real estate companies to negotiate with the union.

Carlson Charges Jurors Falsify To Convict Mrs. McCord

hearing. An investigator is now at work and it will depend largely upon the success of his efforts whether or not the charge can be sustained.

DENIES SUICIDE INTENTION

The defendant was in court and an interested spectator of the unceasing efforts of counsel in her behalf, despite a first set-back in the form of conviction. Although showing the effects of the ordeal through which she is passing, she took occasion to deny privately that at any time had she contemplated suicide, as stated in stories carried in the press the day following the verdict of guilty.

COURTROOM CROWDED

The intense interest which the case has aroused was still in evidence yesterday, the courtroom being crowded, the majority being women, as during the trial.

SENTENCE NOT PASSED

It was the time fixed for passing sentence, but this was not done, for when Judge Bray called "The Case of the People Versus Ruth W. McCord," Attorney Carlson was immediately on his feet with the statement he would like to present a motion for a new trial.

Following the reading of the motion, which was in typewritten form, the attorney argued the motion at length, stressing the point that the verdict was contrary to law in that in order to constitute an offense the purchasing agent, who paid the claim must have had legal authority to do so; that proof that he did not, was found in the law governing the revolving fund of his office limiting payments therefrom to services and materials and the claim presented by Mrs. Booth was for neither. He also asserted that the same law provided that claims must be itemized but in the McCord case the claim was of a blanket nature and was assertedly for expenses for a trip.

CITES DECISIONS

Court decisions upholding the line of argument advanced, were cited, three being called to the attention of the court for his guidance in making a ruling. If decisions holding to the contrary can be found, the district attorney's office will present them next Tuesday.

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL

The motion for a new trial and the grounds on which it was asked that such action be taken, are embodied in the formal written notice, which was as follows:

"1. That the jury received evidence out of court.

"2. That the jury was guilty of misconduct by which a fair and due consideration of the case was prevented.

"3. That the verdict was decided by means other than a fair expression of opinion on the part of the jurors.

"4. That the court misdirected the jury in matters of law.

"5. That the court erred in its decision in regard to the questions of law arising during the course of the trial.

"6. That the District Attorney was guilty of prejudicial misconduct during the trial before the jury.

"7. That the verdict is contrary to law.

"8. That the verdict is contrary to the evidence.

"9. That new evidence has been discovered material to the cause of defendant which she could not with reasonable diligence have discovered and produced at the trial."

"The demand on the County of Contra Costa which was the basis of the charge for the violation of Section 72 of the Penal Code was in words and figures as follows:

"That act provides that 'The officer entrusted with said fund shall not be authorized to expend any portion thereof except for services or materials, the securing or purchase of which is a legal charge against the county.'

"Section 72 of the Penal Code requires as an element of the offense charged in that section that the officer to whom the false claim is presented must be authorized to allow or pay the same, if genuine. Section 72 of the Penal Code.

British Will Protest Red Cross Deaths

with its population of 80,000 but fearful that the destruction wrought at Debra Marcos will be duplicated here, authorities prepared to cope with a possible rain of death from the skies.

BRITISH TO PROTEST

LONDON, March 6 —UP— Aroused by the bombing of a British ambulance unit at Korem, Ethiopia, with a loss of 19 lives, the government today ordered a vigorous protest to Italy.

Pending official reports on the death of Major Gerald Achilles Burgoyne, British head of the Ethiopian Red Cross, the protest covers only the bombing of the Korem unit. Burgoyne was killed in an aerial strafing of Ethiopian warriors fleeing from the northern front.

Orders to protest the bombing were transmitted to Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador to Rome.

He was instructed to request, immediately, a full investigation by the Italian government.

MARTINEZ, March 6 — For injuries she claims she suffered when struck by an automobile in Richmond, Mary Rendell filed suit for $25,000 in superior court here today against Richard Gottardi and G. M. Bateman.

The plaintiff claims that on February 11, 1936, while crossing the intersection of Macdonald avenue and Twenty-second street, she was struck by a machine driven by Gottardi.

She alleges she suffered a knee injury and that gangrene later developed, necessitating removal of a portion of the flesh on her leg.

D.A. ASKED TO STOP OUSTER OF OFFICIAL

doned that plan to retain the men as "special protection forces."

NO IMMEDIATE ACTION

Warren told the delegation late today that he could take no immediate action. He said that a transcript of the school board's act in dismissing Paden and a copy of Paden's contract—which Paden insists has three years to run at $6,000 yearly—had been submitted to him to decide on the legality of the ouster.

Until he has studied the contract and dismissal he can give no opinion on legality of the matter, he said, indicating he would rule on the issue some time Saturday.

INJUNCTION ASKED

Clelland charged that irregularities in office by Roebke and others, as well as the Paden ouster, offered grounds for a grand jury investigation. Warren replied that he doubted such action yet necessary.

The district attorney recommended that Paden start an injunction suit to remove Einar Sorenson and establish his right to office. This was done by Paden.

Shouse Protests "Terrorism" Of The New Deal

WASHINGTON, March 6—UP—President Jouett Shouse of the American Liberty League appealed tonight for a "mammoth protest" against what he described as the Senate lobby committee's 'monstrous' invasion of fundamental rights in obtaining copies of telegrams sent and received in Washington.

Shouse's appeal came at the close of a day in which the committee had questioned three witnesses in its inquiry into the opposition to last session's utility holding company act and revealed that not only had it subpoenaed telegrams but had obtained records of long distance telephone calls.

The committee's method of obtaining access to all telegrams sent and received in Washington—including Liberty League messages—between February 1 and December 1 last year, Shouse charged in a radio speech, was another example of New Deal "terrorism."

BREAK TRY AT PRISON IS FAILURE

ed by Carrier's civilian brother, Claude, from Burlingame, Kan., participated.

STOLEN CAR

Claude Carrier drove to the prison in a stolen car to visit his brother. As they met, he flashed a pistol from his pocket and forced Turnkey Fred Strass to let them into the warden's office.

Reilly was forced into the automobile with the prisoners. They sped north on Highway 77 with a posse of guards and deputies in pursuit.

IN GUN BATTLE

Five miles out, a tire on the fugitives' car was punctured by a shot and they stopped to fight it out.

In the ensuing battle Ray was killed and Reilly fatally wounded. Claude Carrier and Deputy Sheriff George Collins were seriously wounded.

The prison is on a high hill northwest of Sioux Falls. The prisoners took the warden north from there, avoiding the city.

Ray was serving a term for robbery as was Carrier, although for a different crime. Ray was from Ipswitch, S. D.

Car Purloiner Gets Year Term

MARTINEZ, March 6 — Substituting a plea of guilty for one of not guilty, James Victor Johnson, 25, of Richmond, today had been sentenced by Superior Judge A. F. Bray to serve a year in the county jail on a charge of driving an automobile without owner's consent.

Johnson was scheduled to go to trial yesterday on the not guilty plea, but his attorney, Francis W. Collins of Pinole, had to ask the court to relieve him as Johnson's attorney because of press of business. Judge Bray appointed E. Walter Lynch of Pittsburg to represent Johnson and later in the afternoon the plea was substituted.

A second count in the charge, alleging that Johnson had a prior larceny conviction in Washington in 1930, was dismissed by the district attorney.
